General information

In its Pension Rules, the Foundation offers three options for maintaining pension cover after reaching the normal retirement age:

- Option A: Deferral of retirement benefits without savings and risk contributions
- Option B: Deferral of retirement benefits with savings contributions but without risk contributions
- Option C: Deferral of retirement benefits with savings and risk contributions

Since option A is required by law, it is available to all insured persons – even without the employer’s declaration of consent.

Options B and C, on the other hand, are only available to insured persons if the employer provides for the relevant option by signing the present declaration for the enrolment contract named above. Option C can only be offered together with option B.

Please check the option that should be available to your employees.

Option B Option C and option B

Important note: the selected option applies to all enrolment contracts concluded with a collective foundation of Allianz Suisse Life.

Declaration by the employer

The employer hereby declares that the option selected above will be available to employees in the enrolled contract for selection as of

if they remain employed beyond the reference age and contributions are to be paid in accordance with the selected option.

*The date must be set in such a way that a seamless transition to the continued pension cover is possible upon reaching normal retirement age. From this date onwards, the selected option will be available to all other employees.
